Students who get more than 420 points will get an A in the class (not A-, but A). A B requires more than 375 points; a C, more than 330 points.

Writing students: The students taking the course for writing credit have the same assignments as the other students with two exceptions. First, they will rewrite each of the first two tutorials, taking into account my comments and new insights they have about the issues. Each rewrite will be worth 100 points. In addition, they will write four reaction papers rather than just three, so they will be worth 40 points. The total possible points is, then, 660 points.
